

Hurlers shake hands

Leprechauns enjoy playing hurling on St. Patrick's Day. After the game ends, the leprechauns in each of the two teams line up in a row and walk past the other team. As they pass each other, they shake hands. At the beginning, only the first player on each team shakes hands. Next, the first two players on each team shake hands (see picture below). This continues until each player has shaken hands with every player on the other team. There are 5 players on each team.

QUESTION

If each player takes one second to shake hands and move to the next player, how many seconds of shaking hands will there be?

- A. 9
- B. 10
- C. 15
- D. 25
